SLIDE OPERATOR

There is something very freeing about having your hands free during worship. Gone are the days of holding a hymnal looking down to see the words or over at the book your spouse is holding. With the words projected above and in front of the room it gives us the freedom to look forward, and raise our voices, and our hands, to the One we are gathered to worship. Through this process the slide operator has become a very important part of the worship service. Individuals with a basic understanding of computers, and a desire to be an integral part of our worship service will excel in this area of ministry.

LIGHTING TEAM

Through a powerful and God centered worship service, the local church provides guests with this opportunity. There are very few things in this world which have the ability to trigger our emotions, or transport us to another mindset are powerfully as lighting. Anyone who has ever desired to help create an engaging worship environment would be a perfect fit in this ministry, whether it is operating the controls during a service, or helping to create these environments through the staging of lights.

SOUND ENGINEERS

As a culture we expect perfection, we expect cold things to be cold, and hot things to be hot, we expect a room to be air conditioned or heated to perfection. Our lives are full of expectations, sometimes these are met, and sometimes they fall short. Our weekly worship service is no exception. Things shouldn't have to be perfect to engage with Our Father, but in our easily distracted culture the fewer distractions we place in the way of His message the better. A sound engineer should always strive to provide as smooth a service as possible. If no one noticed anything, we know we have been successful. While this lack of recognition may sound negative to some, if this feels right to you, it may be just the place for you to serve.

SERVICE RECORDER

Sometimes a message just hits home. It strikes a cord in your heart, and you want to share it with the world, or maybe just your sister who has a really tough year. Either way through recording our services each weekend, duplicating them, and making them available through the internet this is made possible, now instead of only having a single opportunity to hear this message, it can be shared with anyone anywhere. This ministry would be perfectly suited to anyone with a passion to spread the message of Christ, and the willingness to learn to use some simple equipment.

SLIDE PREPERATION

Visual. No one word probably better describes our current world. Images are everywhere, flashing lights, television, movies, videogames, billboards, banners, signs. Visual images have the ability to transform our thoughts, to guide us down a path in our memory, to trigger emotions, to make us feel things. As a church we are called to reach others with God's message. During our weekly worship service we can use images to invoke these feelings, to create these emotions. If God has gifted you with a creative mind, and some computer knowledge, this ministry may be a perfect fit for you.
